A big plus for this book is that it is written in such a way that it does not require prior experience with Windows. All you have to do is follow the directions and you will be up and running in no time. It is so full of helpful information that you may feel like you know what you are doing when you just start reading the book. Instead of simply guiding you through the installation process, the author also gives you a walk-through of the Windows 10 operating system, including the shortcuts and hot keys. This was a welcome addition because it allowed me to learn shortcuts and hot keys in Windows 10 at the same time. There are many short references to help you understand the material, but I found the most helpful to be the glossary. I still refer to it from time to time, as I try to remember all of the new Windows 10 shortcuts. For an operating system that is brand new, I found the information to be updated and complete, which speaks well for this book. If you want to learn more about the Windows 10 operating system and what you can do with it, then this is the book to read. Steve Schock has been teaching computer classes since 1993. He has a Bachelor of Science in Computer Science from the University of Iowa, and in 2008 he earned his Master of Science in Computer Science from the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater. Steve has taught computer classes since 1993, and his students have ranged from beginners to experts. Steve has taught classes at the local community college, a day care center, a hotel, and an online school. Many of Steve's classes have included Mac OS X, along with Windows. He has taught students how to use their Macs to prepare Power Point presentations, write an article for the school newspaper, organize a yearbook, and design an annual report for the local volunteer fire department. He has taught students how to use their Macs to download music and videos from the internet, and how to search the internet. He has taught Windows XP, Windows Vista, and Windows 7, as well as Mac OS X. Steve enjoys teaching people how to make their computers work for them. * * * 82157476af
